FOREWORD

The overseas information programs of the United States government have in recent years become associated primarily with the responsibilities of the Department of State. However, other agencies of the United States government, in particular the Department of the Army and during the war years, the Office of War Information, have organized and administered information programs overseas.

This bibliography is a selection of writings appearing in books, periodicals, documentary materials and official publications of the United States government on the organization and administration of the overseas information programs and in particular is concerned with the various media used in the dissemination of information abroad. References to the activities of non-governmental and international agencies have also been included to complete this listing of materials on the activities of the United States in the information field.

This bibliography was prepared in the Department's Division of Library and Reference Services under the supervision of Robert E. Scudder, Acting Assistant Chief of the Division. Miss Gwendolyn E. Murphy, Chief of the Division's Bibliography Section and Miss Roberta F. Armbrister compiled and organized the material. Valuable suggestions were received from those Divisions in the Department of State concerned with the operation of the overseas information program.
